Secrets:` www.oreilly.com/catalog/photoshop` ## Creating Layers Photoshop is a layered program. Layers enable you to apply multiple styles to one image and edit each layer separately. You start editing an image by creating a new layer, then adding the various pieces or layers you want to work on: 1. Open an image. 2. Create a new layer. In the _Layers panel,_ choose Edit Create new layer. 3. Select the layer thumbnail and move the layer to the foreground. 4. Select the other layer and drag it to the background layer. When you add a layer in front of an existing layer, you insert it into the drawing and the two layers merge into one. You're editing the front layer as usual. To edit the second layer, its position and visibility change and its pixels are transparent. If you want to see both layers at the same time, choose Layer Split into Layers, which breaks the image into its component layers. 5. Click OK to create the layers and close the dialog box. 6. Apply a mask to one of the layers. As you add more and more layers, more areas are covered by the masks. A layer is covered when it's in front of other layers, and thus displayed as _transparent._ You can see only the areas that aren't masked, enabling you to see underneath the layers and reveal what's hidden. To mask an object on a layer, choose Layer New Masks. You can mask or unmask parts of an object by selecting the area you want and pressing Ctrl+T (Windows) or . Note that the layers in Figure 6-7 are set at 50 percent opacity

Q: How to load a div when a link is clicked in ruby on rails? I am new to ruby on rails. I have not learned any of the basic concepts regarding rails. So, I have a doubt related to this. I have a webpage in which I have loaded a div. This div contains some fields so that I can edit the records. I have links on my page for new, edit and delete records. When the user clicks on edit record I want to pass the id of the record to a method and load the div. I know how to do this with javascript but I am new to ruby on rails so I want to learn it from a different point. Can anybody help me out here?

A: You can do that without javascript. Just use `link_to_remote`. Consider this example: Edit ...and in your controller:

def edit # Do your form stuff here respond_to do |format|
  format.js end end

 In your edit.js.erb, you can do something like this:

```
function loadFields(url) { $('#record_fields').load(url); }

 This should do the trick.

Q: Include 'Fully Qualified' Namespaces In NuGet Package References Is there any way to directly include the fully qualified namespace names in the nuget package references? I'm looking for something that looks like the `\myLibrary\Samples\SampleAssembly.dll` assembly referenced as in `packages\myLibrary\Samples\SampleAssembly.dll` but nuget package reference XML shows tags only with assembly (assembly/dll) names. This means that I have to create the `/ref/packages/myLibrary/Samples/SampleAssembly.dll` file and add it manually to the project before I can use the sample. I would much prefer this to be done automatically, and I've already found (to my dismay) that Microsoft didn't support this back in 2010. So, how do people include those fully qualified namespace names in their nuspec file? Or am I stuck having to create this `/ref/packages/myLibrary/Samples/SampleAssembly.dll` manually?

A: Consider using like so: `packages\myLibrary\Samples\SampleAssembly.dll` For a complete list of the attributes available, see the MSDN documentation.

Two Bologna's pizzerias are running a 'pizza eating contest' - where the winning team will be crowned with a trophy of a pizza made out of the winning team's initials. While it sounds like a bizarre promotion, it's not actually illegal. The contestants will be Italian DJ DJs Francesco Baccino and Gianni Berardi. They're turning the entire pizza - which will be bigger than your average piece of pizza - into a one-off work of art that has no known name or origin. But it will be decorated with,
