AMIBCP V4.53I

amibcp_v5.01.0014.docx: update to version 5.0014 of the amibcp iso. amibcp now supports the booting of uefi firmware versions. to use amibcp for uefi, you must have the free uefi firmware available and boot the computer with a uefi boot loader (e.g., windows 8.x or grub). the following are the available menu options. q: amibcp 2.3. i have tried to install this on my system. as it has to load the amibcp core and then install the remainder it would be no surprise if it failed in the same manner as the previous program. other programs installed included the amibcp core and a few of the game demos from dos, but no copy of mybcp.zip. however, i can't see the core running, and it doesn't appear to have been installed in the correct folder. the same goes for the demos.. amibcp v4.53I (rev. 1.0.0) for win 7 x64 (mt). currently there is no support for windows 8 or windows 10, but this is a target. i have added support for virtual machines, as well as a test mode for those of you who don't have a bios to test on. there is an option to take a backup of the original firmware, including all of the options. during the backup, you can select which options to back up, such as registry settings, startup programs, boot menu or even the version of amibios you are using. after you have backed up the default option, you can choose to restore the backup, or overwrite the original with the backup. i have not created a backup option because there are some options i think should be saved, but i'm sure the options i selected aren't the only ones you might want to save.. amibcp 2.42 recognizes the kv7_vm multilanguage file correctly, but only the language string files are displayed.. i tried to open the same multilanguage file with amibcp 3.13, and it recognizes it as well (even the extended header is the same) but only the language module files are displayed.

AMIBCP V4.53I

So I found another thing where I would like to ask if you have seen it before. In the file AMIBCP V5.02I with the V5.02 suffix (not the V5.02.2 suffix) on the "Setup" tab at the beginning there is a unknown string which is named: null or nothing or empty. It is possible to load it. In my AMIBCP v5.02v06 I have not seen it, though I did not change the rom yet and I can see that there is a new string in there. When I look into this string theres the same string in it (a bunch of exclamation marks) I changed the rom from "en-us" to the "en" language and theres no error. So when I select the language "en" in AMIBCP, the rom opens without this error. Could it be possible that this string has some other function in the BIOS file? When I change the language to "en-us" the string that is in the firmware before disappears. Please someone know and is willing to explain what this string is for My issue is that i'm trying to load the rom firmware using AMIBCP and it says there's an error. I'm having trouble figuring out what's wrong. Can someone please help me?I've looked for similar posts to try to find an answer, but they haven't helped. Here's the message I get: So I have an issue with AMIBCP v5 and the supermicro h11 series of mainboards.I tried to load the rom and get an error: Language name present in rom exceeds 0x08 in lengh. Setup tap and bios string tab will not be shown.Gigabyte and Tyan EPIC-Mainboards do not have that behavior.Ive looked around with UEFITool and changed some stuff but I wasnt able to make it work, so I decided to ask some more talented peopleI couldnt find and mention of this error online, so if youve got any idea feel free to help meScreenshot 5ec8ef588b
