Retrospective analysis of enteroscopic assistance as a treatment option for severe calcific pancreatitis. To retrospectively analyze the results of endoscopic retrograde cholangiopancreatography (ERCP) as a treatment option for severe calcific pancreatitis. Retrospective review of all patients with severe calcific pancreatitis (as defined by the existence of a serum lipase level greater than 2,000 U/L) who underwent ERCP at a single institution between March 2004 and July 2012. Twenty-seven of 3,634 consecutive patients (0.70%) with severe pancreatitis were referred for ERCP. Of these, 22 (81%) were female and median age was 48 years (range, 18-86 years). ERCP was performed in 16 patients (59.2%) within 3 days of admission (median, 1 day; range, 1-3 days). Common bile duct stones were identified in only one patient (4%), and pancreatic stones were found in seven (29%). Pancreatic sphincterotomy was performed in 12 (46%) patients, a postpancreatectomy sphincterotomy was performed in eight (31%), and a hepaticojejunostomy was performed in four (15%) patients. With a median follow-up of 1.5 months (range, 1-114 months), 14 (61%) of the 22 patients had complete resolution of symptoms and no complications. In the United States, endoscopic retrograde cholangiopancreatography is infrequently performed for severe calcific pancreatitis. This retrospective study demonstrates that it is a viable and effective option./* * Tascam encoder * * Copyright (c) 2009 Marcus Meissner * * This file is part of FFmpeg. * * FFmpeg is free software; you can redistribute it and/or * modify
